To Whom It May Concern:

March Healthcare is a developer of next generation eHealth applications. The company's flagship telehealth application platform leverages broadband telecommunications and videoconferencing technologies to enable remote monitoring and health maintenance for healthcare providers and their patients.

We recently retained the services of Gerry Chartrand of Schooley Mitchell Telecom Consultants to assist us with the planning and development of our go-to-market strategy. Gerry's experience and knowledge of the telecom industry, and his understanding of customer needs proved very valuable in enabling us to bring our telehealth product to the commercialization stage.

We would not hesitate to recommend Gerry's consulting services to other businesses seeking insight and advice on telecom issues in general and telehealth applications in particular.

Sincerely,
