To Whom It May Concern:

We recently retained the services of Sean Fox and his team at Schooley Mitchell Telecom Consultants to assist us in ensuring we were receiving the best value for our telecom expenditures.

Sean evaluated our local, long distance, internet and cellular services and provided an independent and comprehensive analysis. Schooley Mitchell's negotiations have created a savings of 33% and don't require us to change suppliers for the majority of our services. We found Schooley Mitchell's report to be succinct and measurable and are confident in their ability to keep us competitive in an ever changing environment.

Within two weeks of entering into the contract with Sean and his organization, our mobile provider inadvertently dropped some important features on several wireless phones in our company. I made one phone call to Sean and his staff about the incident. Within an hour a member of his staff informed me that the features were back in service and wanted to make sure everything else was in tact.

We have been very pleased with the services offered by Sean Fox and Schooley Mitchell and would encourage any organization, large or small, to participate in their risk-free analysis.

Regards,

Matt Auer
