Finding answers. For life.

To Whom It May Concern:

In 2006, the Heart and Stroke Foundation of Ontario (HSFO) retained the services of Schooley Mitchell Telecom Consultants to review its telecommunications services and expenses.

Through Schooley Mitchell, in particular, its project lead Neil Hostein, HSFO was able to achieve substantial (LD alone, 43%) savings in many of its telecommunications activities.

Schooley Mitchell offers experienced and very cost-effective telecommunications analysis and provide an excellent outlet if your company does not have the telecommunications expertise in-house. Their costing model means that if they do not secure the savings, they do not bill.

Our experience with Schooley Mitchell has been first-rate.
