To Whom It May Concern:

Brooklyn Friends School hired Greg Lowry of Schooley Mitchell Telecom Consultants to help us reduce our telecommunications expenses, including cellular phones and Internet access. As an independent school, we were concerned that so much of our budget was spent on telecommunications-related costs but we had no one on staff with the expertise to advise us about where and how to cut costs and improve service. There was no financial risk in hiring Greg to evaluate our operations and make recommendations since, under the terms of his agreement; any payment to him was a percentage of what he had first saved us.

He performed a thorough review of all our services, told us what we were paying for each service, and presented us with alternatives to help reduce our overall expenses. This did not involve a change of service providers. We have benefited enormously from his services with no interruption to service and no necessity of learning to operate new equipment.

When we decided earlier this year to expand our campus and move the upper school to another building, we asked Greg to help us with the selection of a telephone system and vendor. As was the case in our first interaction with him, he was efficient, reliable, a pleasure to work with, and we had no hesitation calling on him again when the need arose. He wrote an RFP which he submitted to several vendors, and then assisted us in comparing the proposals we received from the vendors.

We cannot recommend Greg Lowry and Schooley Mitchell Telecom Consultants more highly. Please feel free to contact us if you have any further questions.

Sincerely,
