To whom it may concern

As a former employee of the telephone company, I had always considered myself to be savvy on the topic of telecommunications. I felt that my telecom services for my business were providing me with what I needed at a fair price. Imagine my surprise when, after taking advantage of the FREE assessment made available by Mike McMahon of Schooley Mitchell, I discovered that I am able to save an additional 44% off my regular monthly telephone bills.

Mike was able to find ways to reduce my costs far beyond what I would have imagined was possible. Just by making a few small changes, I am able to redirect money that I was spending back into my growing business.

As my business continues to grow, I know that I will look to Mike for providing additional expertise in ensuring that I am making the right decisions when making changes to my telecommunications structure.

Mike was very responsive in following up on my request for a visit, and was quick to provide me with the assessment and recommendations. I would wholeheartedly recommend Mike's services for any organization that is looking for ways to reduce cost or even just to have the peace of mind that they are correctly positioned with their telecom services.
