To Whom it may concern, Regarding Schooley Mitchell

In May 2019 we authorized Lyall Newby from Schooley Mitchell to look into our telecommunication and merchant services cost. After an in-depth review of our expenses in these areas Lyall presented an opportunity to secure savings on our landline and payment processing services.

With no investment on our part, other than supplying the information required to do the analysis, we received professional reports outlining the options available, along with recommendations for what they judged to be the most appropriate option that meets the needs of our business while saving us money.

Because of the "no saving, no fee" rule, we received a free confirmation that our internet services are optimized and there are no savings to be currently realized. There were savings identified for our phone system but due to the scale of the implementation and the nominal savings a recommendation was made not to move forward. On our Merchant services through the process we are able to implement a new provider that will result in significant savings.

Lyall will act as the "go to" person when we need professional advice concerning any of the cost areas mentioned above. We are very pleased to endorse Lyall Newby from Schooley Mitchell as a reliable partner for any organization looking to preserve its stretched resources and reduce expenses without investment, risk or obligation.

Sincerely,

Sue Russell
