

To whom it may concern,

I am pleased to write this letter of recommendation for Brent Stormwall of EOS, located in Canton, Georgia. He is a highly respected business leader, EOS Implementer, and executive coach who has dedicated his career to helping entrepreneurs and leadership teams build healthier, more focused, and more successful organizations.

As a Certified EOS Implementer, Brent works closely with entrepreneurial companies to strengthen the six key components of their businesses through the Entrepreneurial Operating System. His coaching focuses on helping leadership teams improve clarity, accountability, communication, strategic planning, and organizational health. With more than 30 years of executive and business ownership experience, Brent brings a unique combination of strategic insight, operational expertise, and leadership development to every organization he works with.

What sets Brent Stormwall apart is his ability to combine strong business discipline with genuine care for the people he serves. Clients consistently praise his calm leadership style, thoughtful guidance, and ability to ask meaningful questions that help teams solve complex challenges together. His background as an engineer, executive leader, and business owner gives him practical real-world experience that resonates with entrepreneurs navigating growth and operational challenges.

I highly recommend Brent Stormwall of EOS for his professionalism, strategic leadership, and dedication to helping businesses achieve clarity, growth, and long-term success through effective leadership and proven business systems.

Sincerely,

Kevin Stahr
