

To whom it may concern:

I am pleased to recommend Taylor, Eldridge & Endres, P.C., a law firm located in Smithtown, New York. It provides legal services in several areas, and its practice serves homeowners associations, condominium and co-op boards, landlords, property owners, businesses, and individuals throughout Long Island.

It offers comprehensive support for a variety of legal matters, including governing document and community association issues, residential and commercial real estate transactions, lease agreements, eviction proceedings, business and contract disputes, and estate planning and administration. Its attorneys also provide representation in litigation and guidance regarding complex property and community-related concerns.

A particular strength of Taylor, Eldridge & Endres is its experienced and knowledgeable team. Its attorneys bring extensive backgrounds in community association law, real estate, litigation, municipal law, and other areas of practice. The team takes a hands-on approach to legal matters, emphasizing clear communication, personalized attention, and practical guidance throughout each case.

I highly recommend Taylor, Eldridge & Endres as a well-rounded approach to legal representation through its broad range of services and experienced team. Its combination of legal knowledge, professional experience, and individualized attention allows it to address diverse legal needs while helping clients navigate complex matters with informed guidance and careful consideration.

Sincerely,

Barry Greenberg
