

To whom it may concern,

I'm pleased to recommend Pioneer Vocational Industrial Services for its long-standing commitment to supporting individuals with disabilities through meaningful employment. Located in Danville, Kentucky, and established in 1967, it provides reliable production services while helping individuals gain skills, confidence, and greater independence.

Through programs like AbilityOne, Pioneer Vocational Industrial Services offers job training and steady employment opportunities that make a lasting difference in the lives of those it serves. Its work benefits both the individuals employed and the industries that rely on its dependable services.

The team at Pioneer Vocational Industrial Services is dedicated, compassionate, and mission driven. Its focus on inclusion and quality has earned the trust of partners locally and across the country. They work closely with each individual providing support, training, and encouragement.

I highly recommend Pioneer Vocational Industrial Services for its dedication to helping people with disabilities build skills and find meaningful work. Pioneer Vocational Industrial Services continues to make a real impact by providing reliable services and creating inclusive opportunities that truly make a difference.

Sincerely,

John Johnson
