

To whom it may concern,

I am writing this letter to recommend Denver Inner City Parish, a nonprofit organization located in Denver, Colorado, with a history dating back to the 1960s. It has demonstrated a sustained commitment to supporting individuals and families experiencing economic hardship through reliable community-centered programs.

Denver Inner City Parish provides a broad range of services that address both immediate and long-term challenges. These services include food access through a food pantry and mobile distribution, care navigation for housing, public benefits, health resources, and specialized programming for seniors. It also operates an Immigrant Center offering legal and social support, along with educational initiatives as scholarships and youth development programs.

It is strengthened by a dedicated and highly skilled team that approaches their work with professionalism and compassion. Staff members and volunteers collaborate effectively to deliver services in a respectful and culturally informed manner. Leadership maintains strong operational standards and fosters partnerships that enhance service delivery.

I wholeheartedly recommend Denver Inner City Parish as a trusted and impactful organization within the Denver community. It is recognized for its comprehensive services, experienced team, and decades-long commitment to service. Its work represents a valuable contribution to community support and social stability.

Sincerely,

Matt Nagy
Optimization Specialist
Schooley Mitchell