

To whom it may concern,

I am more than happy to write this letter to express my strong recommendation for the City of Monticello, located in Monticello, Minnesota. As a municipal institution, the City of Monticello delivers a comprehensive suite of services that support the daily needs and long-term well-being of its residents.

Among its service offerings are water, sewer, garbage, and recycling utilities as part of a streamlined municipal utility program. Beyond the essential services, the City of Monticello supports robust community resources, including a network of parks, trails, and recreational amenities, as well as access to public transit options through regional shuttle services.

The team behind the city's operations consistently demonstrates professionalism, responsiveness, and a strong commitment to the safety and well-being of the community. This includes the administrative staff who manage billing and public records as well as the departments responsible for utilities, public works, recreation, and community services. Their coordinated efforts support efficient service delivery and uphold the integrity of municipal operations.

I highly recommend the City of Monticello as a well-managed and capable municipal organization that provides essential services and fosters a cohesive, thriving community. It's a vibrant and growing city that blends small-town charm with progressive development.

Sincerely,

Nick Vetrano
