

To whom it may concern,

I am pleased to provide this letter of recommendation for Feed Halton, a nonprofit organization dedicated to strengthening food security throughout the Halton Region. Its commitment to building a collaborative and sustainable food distribution network has established it as a vital resource for the communities it serves.

Feed Halton offers a comprehensive range of services, including centralized food procurement, warehousing, food storage, inventory management, sorting and packing, regional distribution, volunteer engagement, agency partnership support, and logistics coordination for both perishable and non-perishable food, as well as essential household and personal care items. It supports a network of more than 16 food banks, community organizations, and meal program partners throughout Halton by distributing free food, essential goods, and personal care products to those in need.

Feed Halton is supported by a dedicated team of staff, volunteers, and community partners who work collaboratively to address the growing demand for food assistance across the region. Through their compassion, professionalism, and commitment, they help ensure that local food banks and community organizations have reliable access to the resources needed to support individuals and families experiencing food insecurity. Their collective efforts play a significant role in advancing Feed Halton's mission and expanding its positive impact within the community.

I am happy to recommend Feed Halton to individuals, organizations, businesses, and community partners seeking a reputable and impactful nonprofit organization. Its experienced team, comprehensive food distribution services, and unwavering commitment to improving food security make it an outstanding organization dedicated to creating lasting positive change throughout the Halton Region.

Sincerely,

Dinesh Mohangupta
Strategic-Partner
Schooley Mitchell