

To Whom It May Concern,

I wanted to take this opportunity to write about my experience working with Marty Stacey of Schooley Mitchell. I am the Executive Director of Project Abraham, a small nonprofit organization in Toronto that offers support to newcomers in Canada.

No one knows the importance of managing costs more than those who work in the nonprofit sector. I was faced with the task of setting my employees up with cell phones – I had no idea where to start. The thought of calling various companies getting quotes was overwhelming – I just didn't have the time or expertise to do this. I reached out to Marty and Schooley Mitchell and they were incredibly helpful in finding the right options for Project Abraham.

My experience with Schooley Mitchell and Marty Stacey was great. Over a couple of phone calls, Marty took the time to understand our cell phone needs and asked all the necessary questions. Within a few weeks, Schooley Mitchell provided me with a value report that presented different options to choose from. They explained the benefits to each option – but the decision was left to me in terms of which option to choose. Once I identified the preferred option, Schooley Mitchell worked with me to help get the contracts set up with my chosen vendor. They even audited the first 3 invoices from the telecom vendor and found a billing error and managed to get refund issued for Project Abraham!

I strongly recommend anyone looking to optimize their costs to reach out to Marty Stacey and Schooley Mitchell. They offer a valuable service that can help any organization ensure they aren't paying more than they should on their operating costs.

Sincerely,
